The colored Republicans had a parade, orations and general jollification, yesterday and last night, in Richmond.

Kentucky went about 40,000 Democratic. The Republicans lost two Congressmen and gained one, making the delegation stand 9 to 2.

The actors are not all poor. Mary Anderson is worth $250,000; Joe Jefferson, $300,000; Mrs. Langtry, $600,000; Edwin Booth, $1,000,000.

In the great city of Louisville and Jefferson county, Frank, the prohibition candidate for President secured a grand total of twenty-five votes.

B. F. Cockrell and J. O. Embury, both of Montgomery county, are candidates for the State Senate in that district. It is a Cockrell failing to win every time they run.

In the recent election in Bourbon, four hundred more votes were polled than ever before recorded in that county. That accounts for a part of Kentucky's 40,000 majority.

The public debt is $1,137,290, 036, besides the cash in the treasury, which is $74,691,962. The debt was reduced, during the month of October, $1,585,619, and since July 1st, $25,294,620.

The Supreme Court of the United States having decided that the Iowa Prohibition law is constitutional, there is now no necessity for a National Prohibition party. If a State want's prohibition, it can have it.

The Olive Branch, the new paper published at Danville, by Messrs. W. B. Nichols and Joe Moore, is a bright, new sheet. It is independent in politics, Mr. Nichols being a Republican and Mr. Moore a Democrat.

A colored man was disfranchised at a recent term of the Montgomery circuit court, for vote selling. At the recent election, he voted again, and is now in jail. That is a little hard on one man, as thousands sell their votes every election.

Mr. Lou Cassell, of Jessamine county, who is more than eighty years old voted for Cleveland and Thurman, the first vote he has cast for thirty-five years. If the Democrats everywhere had done as well as Kentucky Democrats, the result would have been a "lee-le" different.

SHE OPENED THEIR EYES.

Miss Maria Tipton, of Paris, won the medal at Lake Chautauqua, the past summer, for best pronunciation, over Vassar, Princeton and the other schools up North and East. It is a too common belief, both up North and down South, that the education is all north of Mason & Dixon's line, hence the schools opened their eyes with wonder, when Miss Tipton, according to their own standards of pronunciation, carried away the honor, after a fair and lengthy contest. Several times, the judges decided against her, on certain words, but reference to the dictionary changed the decision in her favor. Miss Tipton is a teacher of rare acquirements.

OUR AWFUL CONDITION.

Mr. Cleveland was defeated, and Mr. Harrison elected, and it is well-nigh useless to undertake to say what caused it. We shall however pause to say that the States went as they did four years ago, except Indiana and New York, both of which, this time, gave Republican majorities. It seems that the tariff had little to do with the vote, save to make the wealthy factories put a large quantity of "boodle" into the race for the feast. Mr. Harrison's residence being in Indiana, State pride helped materially to give the day for him. In New York, while Mr. Cleveland lost the State by ten thousand, Mr. Hill, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and a strong prospective candidate for President, four years hence, was elected by 20,000, making a difference between the two Democratic candidates of 20,000 votes. It could not have been party principle, but something personal. The veto of the pension bill by Mr. Cleveland no doubt lost him thousands of votes, and his failure to "turn the rascals out," lost him thousands more.

Now that the Republicans are in, what are they going to do about it? We'll tell you. It is probable that the next Congress is Republican. If so, they will pass the pension bill and consume the $132,000,000 surplus in the Treasury for the payment of pensions, so that the Democrats cannot use its existence as an argument why the tariff ought to be reduced. Then the territories of Dakota, Montana and Washington will be introduced into the Union as States, and Dakota divided into two, giving the Republicans eight United States Senators and a number of Congressmen. What else they will do, except to continually "fire" every Democrat holding office, we are unable to say.

JUSTICE SAMUEL F. MILLER.

Justice Samuel F. Miller, the senior Justice of the United States Supreme Court, has been on the Supreme Court Bench twenty-five years. This is the only public office he has ever held. He is one of the strongest judges, both physically and mentally. He belongs to the rugged, resolute type developed in the days of Clay, Webster, John Quincy Adams, Calhoun and Benton. He was appointed by Abraham Lincoln when the Supreme Court was re-organized by Congress in 1862. His career is one of great interest. He has lived through a period of remarkable development in this country, and has been very conspicuous through his long career on the Bench of the Supreme Court in shaping the character of the National Government, so far as it lay through the construction of the Constitution and the legislation of Congress under it. No one has done more to perfect the machinery of this government and responsible task than this veteran jurist. During his twenty-five years on the bench there has not been a single cloud upon his reputation. He has not been a speculative judge. He will go from the bench when he retires with an honored and unblemished name. Justice Miller was born in Richmond, Kentucky, April 5th, 1816. His father was a Pennsylvania German; his mother was of good South Carolina stock. The first twelve years of his life were spent on a farm. His father was a pioneer of the older type, and was a man of great energy and industry. The elder Miller was never able to give his son more than an education at the academy in Richmond, a town at that time of about one thousand inhabitants. Young Miller was very proficient in his studies. He was at the head of all his classes, and was especially strong in mathematics and grammar. The Judge still retains his love for mathematics. The choice of an occupation in life came to him, as to most boys who have their own way to make, through mere accident. Dr. Leverell, a relative of his mother, kept a drug store in Richmond, and employed a young Miller as a clerk after he left school. The only education that Miller received from the regular schools was that given him at Richmond. He never had the advantage of college training, although, when he came to study law, he took up the Latin language and mastered it. Dr. Leverell advised him to become a physician. He was three years in the drug store, and then he spent two or three years more at the Transylvania Medical School, of Kentucky, where he graduated, and received his diploma. He practiced medicine eight years after this, before he made up his mind to become a lawyer. He was thirty years of age, and had a wife and two children, when he was admitted to the bar. He was strongly in favor of emancipation, and did much to further that cause; and, although he took no part in politics, the course of public affairs induced him to remove in 1850 from the slave State of Kentucky to Iowa, where he became a leader of the Republican party. He rapidly rose to the position of the leading lawyer of the State, and as he would never consent to accept office he was extremely popular with all of the politicians. In 1862, as before said, he was appointed by President Lincoln Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, which office he still occupies. He was also the orator at the Centennial Celebration of the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia on the 15th of September, 1877—Sunny South.

TOBACCO—ITS CULTURE AND ITS USE.
[IV]
Editor of The Climax:
As suggested in our last we are now to consider the case of the man who has lands of tobacco.

If he be a lone man and puts in five acres of tobacco he has his work for the year—all he can do save care for his garden and patch of corn—the reliance for money will be on his tobacco. If the tobacco crop shall fail then embarrassment will ensue as with the tenant previously considered.

If he shall have sons or hired help, so as to carry on a varied culture, then he will have his tobacco culture confining with the proper culture of his corn, the gathering of his wheat, oats and hay crop, and deferring the proper time for sowing his wheat. The tobacco must be attended to at certain junctures or be lost. In his attention to the tobacco he will lose in the better part of his culture. Also his barns and stables used for housing his tobacco will be to the detriment of his oats, hay and stock, or he be at considerable expense in erecting tobacco barns. These in many places soon become useless property and pass into decay; for the best ground for bright, fancy, "waxy" tobacco is not the level fertile portions of Ohio or Kentucky, but a belt along the Ohio River and small portions along the Kentucky River. Such lands are exposed to destructive washes. A sad fact is that very often that class of men who engage in the culture of tobacco as a general truth are not thoughtful, have no foresight, do not plan for future good, only for immediate money. They have committed themselves to the business, have no appliances for any thing else and push this one business and, within a few years, their lands are worn out. I know districts in Kentucky where thousands of acres are so impoverished by this culture, that they are now given up to wash and bush. The owners of these lands have "killed the goose to get the egg." In these districts the reader can count scores upon scores of dilapidated barns, poor fences, inferior dwelling houses, inferior school houses and few church houses. As a general truth the class of men engaged in the business do not seem to plan for social well-being or the good of the country.

This leads me to the most serious aspect of the whole business—its effects upon the intellectual, the moral, the social life. The time when the sons of farmers are expected to leave the benefit of the district school is in the fall and winter season. From the first day of the fall season on into the spring season is the constant pressure of the tobacco crop.

As a general truth the sons of such farmers get but little education. The business does not require education. An ignorant, illiterate boy can plant, hoe, worm, sucker, cut, house, whip tobacco about as well as one with a liberal education. The sons of tobacco raisers, from the very nature of the business, are too generally uneducated. Then their associations in the labor are generally bad. The help, the hands employed are of the illiterate class of men—not of noble aspirations, nor always of honest thought.

If tobacco is grown in districts where neither landlords nor their sons engage in the business, and they lease lands for the culture of tobacco on the shares or otherwise, the leasing is done to a class of men who are, to say the least, transient men, who will occupy some out-house and with whom the landlord and his family generally have no intercourse save what mere business relations demand. For the education, religious culture or social well-being of the leasers, usually but little attention is given. This leaves an alien class in society, and a class who by their vocation consign themselves to isolation and prescription and idleness. The culture of tobacco is a bad business with bad results.

JOHN G. FEE.
QUEER BETS.

J. H. Chalmers, of Charleston, W. Va., is to shave his head perfectly clean.

Dr. R. J. D. Meade, of Cincinnati, wins ten Sunday dinners from one of his patients.

C. J. Smith will shoo C. S. Nollath's shoes on Vine street, in Cincinnati, every day for a week.

A. Conn, of Cincinnati, pulls a snaky from Dayton to Miami, Ohio, a distance of ten miles.

Fred Engle, of Reading, Ohio, tows 160 acres of land, which he had put up against a five-dollar hat.

Charles Weidman, of Cincinnati, is to jump off the wharf-boat into the Ohio river at Charleston, W. Va.

H. J. Kleymer, of the Postal Telegraph Company, wears a seersucker (without overcoat) until March 4th.

George Webber, of Cincinnati, rolls Allau Roggles in a barrel from Clark street bridge to Polk street, Chicago.

Four young Democrats at Rockville, Ill., pay the expenses of a swell ball gotten up by as many young Republicans.

Mr. Pease, of Bond Hill, Ohio, is obliged to wear petticoats for three months. Dick Stover will enjoy Pease's plight.

Frank Morgan chops a cord of wood for George Williamson in front of a Washington (D. C.) stock broker's office.

Marcellus McDowell, of Peru, Ind., loses $10 and a young lady who had promised to be his wife if Cleveland was elected.

Henry Wilson, of Otwa, Ohio, will paint Wm. Hughes' face blue and walk him through the streets of Portsmouth, O.

Fifty Flemingsburg Democrats must pay $30 each for shoes which would have cost nothing had the result been different.

An Ironton, Ohio, girl is to call at her sweetheart's place of business and kiss him on as many days as Harrison has electoral votes.

Jake Gardner, of Flemingsburg, will pay for a number of horses which he sold to Republicans who were to pay for them had Cleveland won.

Daniel McAbey, of Cincinnati, trades Fred Shafer, bar-keeper at the Highland House, from the Highland House to the end of the cable road.

Fred Westerman, of Cincinnati, is to drive George Layman all over town, accompanied by a brass band, Layman being seated on a horse with a monkey on his head.

R. W. Pierce, the old-time pedestrian, walks fifty miles in the belt of the Highland House. Had Cleveland won, Ph. Rindfleisch would have taken the walk.

Frank Wood, a Washington (D. C.) dairyman, entertains Salmonst McCormick and a party of friends to the best his dairy larder affords. It was a bet of champagne against buttermilk.

Ed Lackman, the Cincinnati brewer, assists Ed Hoeftfeld, the grocer, into a wheelbarrow and wheels him up Sixth street from Headley to Central avenue, to Fifth, to Headley, to Garfield avenue, to the brewery. The loser weighs 270 pounds and the winner 110 pounds.

C. W. McClung, a prominent citizen of Kyles, Ohio, will be led with a big halter around his neck by W. C. Stewart, who rides in a buggy from Morrow to Delroy, four miles, accompanied by a band. There will also be a wheelbarrow brigade of nine Republicans wheeled by as many Democrats over the route taken by the band and halter procession.

BORN.

To the wife of Andrew Broadbuss, a son—Cleveland.

The Monticello, Ill., Female Seminary was destroyed by fire Saturday the teachers and pupils escaping unhurt. The loss on the building and contents is $150,000; insurance $75,000.

A New Editor For The American Magazine.

Mr. John Gilmer Speed has become the editor of The American Magazine, which under its new ownership has already shown many evidences of vigor and enterprise. Mr. Speed, who belongs to the well-known Kentucky family of that name, is well fitted by taste and training to successfully carry out the new work he has undertaken. He has passed through all the grades of journalism, and was for several years Managing Editor of the New York World, before it was purchased by its present proprietor. Since then he has spent much time in foreign travel, and has also been a frequent contributor to the magazines and newspaper press. In conducting the Magazine, it is Mr. Speed's purpose to make it all that its name implies—an illustrated monthly, representative of American thought and life. He will have the hearty co-operation of competent and resourceful colleagues, and he therefore starts out with a bright prospect of making The American Magazine worthy of the success which usually follows well-directed effort.

THE OLDEST CLOTHING HOUSE IN RICHMOND. FIRST ST. may 2-11.

THE CLIMAX

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1888.

Several days, the week past, were summer-like.

Rev. E. Forman and family have removed into their handsome new residence on Main street.

Rev. L. H. Blanton will preach at Ford at 11 A. M., Sunday, and meet with the Sunday-school at 2:30.

We hear that a wedding occurred in Garrard county, on Sunday before last at which the bride was 50 and the groom 75.

Mr. John T. Hughes, the well known horseman, was thrown from his buggy at Murr's Station and painfully, though not dangerously, hurt.

Mr. C. L. Tipton, as administrator, will sell at public sale, near Speedwell, Saturday, December 1st, horses, mules, cattle, sheep, hogs, grain and farming implements.

Dr. R. F. Flood, of Irvine, came down last week, to see his brother, Dr. Joe Flood, of this county, who has been confined to his bed for six weeks with abscess of the liver.

At Mr. Robert Miller's sale, on last Thursday, corn in the field sold at $1.60 to $1.72; hay about $2.60 per stack. Farming implements brought good prices, and stock well.

Miss Kate Kaufman was shot through the head and killed and another lady shot in the shoulder by a stray bullet, during the Republican demonstration at Nicholasville, Monday night.

Gen. C. M. Clay, Maj. C. F. Burnam, Mr. E. T. Tamm, and Mr. Green B. Miller were the orators at the colored Republican jubilee yesterday, and Mr. Wood Dunlap, last night.

Messrs. Wells & Todd will sell publicly on Saturday, the 24th, at the Dr. Scott place, one mile from town on the Tate Creek turnpike, their personal property, consisting of cattle, hogs, horses, mules, farming implements, etc., to close the partnership.

Walter Bennett, C. S. Powell, John K. Faulkner, W. S. Hume, Sam Bennett, Elmer Embury, John Wilmore and J. B. Walker—Kirkville—left on Monday for Tennessee, for a hunt. They were joined by Messrs. Ed Walker and W. S. Walker, of Garrard, Jack Chinn, of Harrodsburg, and W. C. Goodloe, of Lexington.

As we go to press, the Republicans are yawning and yawning, and yelling, and yawning. Eloquence, anvil, fire-works, and fire-works. Loud butchery; a good deal of it, but it won't last longer than morning. L. H. G.

Trifling Sale.
November 13th. John B. Chennault, administrator. David Trifling: Horse stock sold low. One mare and colt, $125; one mare, $75; one mare $65; one mare, $10; one cow and calf $35.50; fat hogs, $5; sheep, first lot, $4 a head; second lot $3.50. Corn at heap, $1.35. Z. E. Bush, auctioneer.

Flare His Horse.
Mr. O. M. Florence, of Harrison county, found, through Sheriff Deatherage, a horse, in this county, that was stolen three years ago, last May, by the negro, Stanford Jones, who is now serving a two-year sentence in the penitentiary for a similar offense. Mr. Deatherage has another stolen horse awaiting the owner.

Shorthorn Sales.
In Clark County, on November 27th, 28th, and 29th, Messrs. S. B. & R. B. Redmon, Leslie Combs, John W. Prentiss, and S. D. Goff will sell 310 shorthorns. These are all good cattle, will be seen by a perusal of the advertisement elsewhere in this issue of THE CLIMAX. These sales can be conveniently attended by persons living in Madison county, as the trains run so as to go and return the same day.

What.
The wheat crop in Madison county is about all sold. The highest price reached was $1.05. The lowest was $1.00. Only one man—Mr. P. Fox, who had 1,200 bushels. The largest crop harvested was that of Senator Harris—4,000 bushels, but he sold it some time ago at 75 cents. Forman, Chennault & Co. bought 8,000 bushels. Covington, Arnold & Co. bought and sold 15,000 bushels at the selling price being $1.05. Altogether, the crop sold amounted in the county to more than 100,000 bushels.

Battled Agents.
The mail-routes generally, somewhere along the line, were so rattled by the election, or something else, that they need re-organizing. THE CLIMAX has 23 subscribers at Drip Rock in Jackson county, and the papers have been going regularly all the time. Last week, they were returned to THE CLIMAX office with the information endorsed thereon, "no such office." A bundle to Litchfield, the county seat of Grayson, was returned in the same way. We reminded them, and they have not been returned, and hope they won't. Some fellow was undoubtedly a whiff off.

Thin Column.
Mr. Swiggums keeps a hotel at Michigan City.

Mr. Council and Miss Crow were married at Devils Lake. They can have a cavew.

Mr. Hansbrough is Mayor of Devils Lake, but Mr. Maher is not Mr. Hansbrough.

The London Echo announces that Mr. Cushing is sick. Wonder if the sickness is catching?

The marriage of the engineer of the Thin Column has encouraged several other newspaper men to go and do likewise. Now don't blame us, dear sirs.

The Bourbon News announces that John Spohn, the butcher, whom the circus elephant struck with his snout at Cincinnati, is out again. Possibly he was knocked out.

In Laurel county, a man, who was on trial for larceny, before Judge Boering, knocked the Judge down, as an argument against the accusation, but it had a contrary effect.

Mr. Billy Bottom lives in Anderson county, and Mr. Billy Hill in Madison county. Mr. Lake, Mr. Pond, and Mr. Cliff also live hereabouts. Why not construct a landscape?

"This is a summer bus," he said, as they stepped into a stage curtailed vehicle at Fargo, the wind blowing, and the thermometer down to 30. "Yes," he replied, "some are buses, and some are not—a wagon is a wagon."

Until the year 1770 this law was in force in England: "Whoever shall offend in bonds of matrimony any male subject of her Majesty's by means of force, white paint, Spanish coach, steel corsets, crinoline high-heeled shoes, or false hips, shall be prosecuted for witchcraft, and the marriage declared null and void."

RED HOUSE.
Mr. F. M. Lutes, late of Paint Lick, has rented the Shearer stand, and has moved into the new one. He has a fine lot of goods, and has returned from the trip. The men presented pistols and forced Johnson to call off the dogs, and when the animals attacked the white men they drove away. Johnson followed them soon afterward, but only succeeded in getting back one of his dogs. He is very much worried over the loss of the dogs, and as the men are not strangers to him, he doesn't know what course to pursue to recover them.

Ramsay's Sale.
On November 10th had a fair attendance: 12 cows sold from $14 to $25 a head; weanling calves from $9 to $11; 5 yearlings, $30; 30 year-old, common, 3 cents; 2 jack colts, $30; yearling horse, $20; 2 two-year-old horse $60; corn in the field, $1.80 and $1.75 per acre; the farm was taken down at $31 per acre. Z. E. Bush, Auctioneer.

Covington-Spears Terrier-Spears.
Messrs. T. T. Covington and R. E. Turley, of Richmond, and Miss Kate Della Spears, of Jessamine county, will be married at Mt. Eden church in Fayette county, to-morrow, Thursday, November 15th, at 12:30 o'clock. Elders C. F. Williams and Messrs. R. C. H. Covington, of Richmond, and Mr. John Spears, of Jessamine, perform the offices of "best man." The ushers will be Messrs. W. L. Arnold, of Richmond, and Louis Spears, Perry Brough and Geo. Land, of Jessamine. Immediately after the ceremony, the party will leave for home. The brides are among the most beautiful girls of their county, and the grooms two fine and rising young business men of Richmond.

A Real Estate Woman.
Mrs. Gen. Ransom, of Lexington, formerly Mrs. Goodloe, well known here, has become a dealer in real estate in Chicago. The Lexington Gazette says:

A few days ago the Chicago Times made an extended notice of wealthy ladies owning and dealing in real estate in the "Windy City." Among the names mentioned were "Mrs. Ransom, of Kentucky, who has holdings to the value of one million, it is said, and who is individually responsible for much of her wealth." A few days ago the sold property in a Chicago suburb, called Cicero, for $50,000 net. There were 22 acres in the lot, and she has the ownership of 40 acres more in this tract which is valued at $50,000. The tract which Mrs. Ransom sold for $50,000 cost $15,000, and by the sale the net sum of $35,000 was cleared. The Chicago Times classifies Mrs. Ransom among the shrewdest of married estate speculators. We congratulate her on her phenomenal success and are proud of her as a Kentucky lady.

PERSONAL.
Miss Zenaida Embury is visiting in Paris.

Miss Mary B. Harris left on last Friday for Chicago.

"This is a summer bus," he said, as they stepped into a stage curtailed vehicle at Fargo, the wind blowing, and the thermometer down to 30. "Yes," he replied, "some are buses, and some are not—a wagon is a wagon."

Until the year 1770 this law was in force in England: "Whoever shall offend in bonds of matrimony any male subject of her Majesty's by means of force, white paint, Spanish coach, steel corsets, crinoline high-heeled shoes, or false hips, shall be prosecuted for witchcraft, and the marriage declared null and void."

RED HOUSE.
Mr. F. M. Lutes, late of Paint Lick, has rented the Shearer stand, and has moved into the new one. He has a fine lot of goods, and has returned from the trip. The men presented pistols and forced Johnson to call off the dogs, and when the animals attacked the white men they drove away. Johnson followed them soon afterward, but only succeeded in getting back one of his dogs. He is very much worried over the loss of the dogs, and as the men are not strangers to him, he doesn't know what course to pursue to recover them.

The Republicans of this city had a grand jubilee Saturday, November 11th. They were so worried by the election that they could hardly raise a yell. But for the assistance of a few Democrats, the citizens would not have known that anything unusual was going on. However, they didn't have any of the infamous, unscrupulous, unprincipled and hell-bent creases—Kings-Aldrich.

IN MEMORIAM.
Of Lala Cosby, who died November 5th, 1888.

Oh! how sadly we miss thee, We can hear thy voice no more; Yet, the thought is most consoling That thy sufferings are o'er.

God for some wise purpose called thee—Called thee to live with him above, Where there is no death or sorrow, Where all is joy, peace and love.

Gladly we would have kept thee with us, But God willed it otherwise, He sent his angels to bear thee onward—To a home beyond the skies.

In the household many sorrow, That thy race so soon is run; But should our hearts be true to thee, As the Savior has bid thee come.

Through the fields of bright Celestial, Thy freed spirit now may roam, And with dear departed kindred, Share an ever blissful home.

Farwell, dear Lulu, we hope to meet thee, When the day of life is fled, And in Heaven with joy to meet thee, Where no farewell tear is shed.

—FANNIE.
Waco, Ky., Nov. 8th, '88.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.
WHEREAS, God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to take from among us a part thereof, a citizen of this city, A. J. Hamilton.

And, whereas, by his loss we are deprived of one of our oldest and best members, the community a most worthy citizen, his family a kind father, a loving husband, be it therefore

Resolved, That we the members of Berea Lodge No. 617 of F. & A. M., do deeply deplore our loss and do hereby extend our heartfelt sympathy to his wife and children. That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes as a part thereof, printed in THE CLIMAX and Kentucky Register, and a copy sent to the wife of the deceased. Further that our hall be appropriately draped for thirty days and the members of this Lodge wear the usual badge of mourning for the same length of time.
